

smartpurse

Questions to start off your money talks

CHECKLIST

10 questions to talk about money without mentioning a single figure

Talking about money with friends, partners, colleagues, your kids brings many benefits: you get to know yourself and the other person better, you learn new things and you boost your overall confidence. In research some 60+% of people said they felt better after a money talk.

But where to start and how to open the conversation? This can feel awkward at times, so we compiled a list of 10 example questions for any occasion that will allow you to open a money conversation without mentioning one single figure. Give it a go and see how you feel and what you'll discover.

Conversations starters that make your life easier

- ? What do you think about ...
- ? Read/heard/watched a recent report on....how do you see this?
- ? I am currently thinking about.....how do you do this?
- ? What are the 3 best investments you have ever made?
- ? Where do you get more information / inform yourself about...any tips you can share?
- ? I'm currently looking for...do you have an idea who I could ask or can you recommended something/someone?
- ? You know what just happened to me recently?Do you know that?
- ? What are your goals for when you're older? Have you already started planning for this time and if so, how?
- ? Are there any experts you're following that help you with...?
- ? What were your favourite investments that didn't target increasing your money, such as education, sport, travel, etc.?

smartpurse

We constantly develop new content and guidelines. If you have any questions or recommendations, please let us know and we'll get back to you.

info@smartpurse.me